Call for Papers

Acta Politologica (www.acpo.cz) is a peer reviewed online journal published at the Department of Political Science (Institute of Political Studies at Faculty of Social Sciences – Charles University Prague).

Acta Politologica is aiming to interconnect political science analyses of power and government with a wide range of relevant research topics in other fields of social sciences including history, sociology, anthropology etc.

Acta Politologica endorse articles containing methodology of research as well as analyses of power and dynamic changes in power relations ongoing in various societies (including democratic, undemocratic, modern or traditional systems). The aim of Acta Politologica is to promote closer ties between political science and humanities.

Acta Politologica emphasizes interdisciplinary research of power relations. Journal prefers articles in comparative politics, electoral studies, decentralization, analyse of relevant political entities, political participants and their relations (with emphasis on shaping relevant identities) and transition to democracy in comparative perspective.

Journal is published twice a year (April and October). Every article submitted for publication undergoes the process of blind peer review. Articles may be submitted by e-mail attachment (acpo@fsv.cuni.cz).

We welcome articles from all perspectives and on all subjects pertaining power relations in contemporary political systems in local, regional and global context. The languages we accept are: Czech, Slovak, English, French or German. All submissions should include abstract and keywords in English (and English translation of the title if not written in English).

Footnote on the first page should contain the article's title, author's name, e-mail contact and workplace address. All tables, graphs and other attachments should be numbered consecutively.
